

THE CAMPBELL COLLABORATION

CRIME AND JUSTICE GROUP NEWSLETTER

ISSUE 5: JANUARY 2010

Happy New Year from the Campbell Crime and Justice Group! With Best Wishes for 2010

Welcome to the monthly newsletter from the Campbell Collaboration Crime and Justice Group. As part of the international Campbell Collaboration, our mission is to coordinate, facilitate, assist and encourage the production, updating and accessibility of high quality systematic reviews on the effects of criminological and criminal justice interventions.

Updates to the Campbell Library

We are pleased to report that the upgrades to the Campbell Library of Systematic Reviews are progressing well. The Crime & Justice Reviews page (http://www.campbellcollaboration.org/reviews_crime_justice/index.php) is now working again and has been improved to include links to the full text of our completed reviews, and their protocols and other related documents. In-progress projects are also available in the Campbell Library (<http://www.campbellcollaboration.org/library.php>).

Thank you to all our colleagues at the Campbell Collaboration in Norway for their hard work on improving the website.

10th Annual Jerry Lee Crime Prevention Symposium, April 19-20, 2010

Registration is now open for the Jerry Lee Crime Prevention Symposium, a two-day event examining systematic evidence on crime prevention and its impact on policy. Day 1 is held at the University of Maryland, College Park and Day 2 in Washington, DC, near Capitol Hill. Day 1 includes a discussion of the National Academy of Sciences' review of the National Institute of Justice, and Day 2 will feature a roundtable panel moderated by Laurie Robinson (Asst. Attorney General, Office of Justice Programs), titled "Pulling Federal Levers to Further Evidence-Based Approaches - What's Possible and What's Not." Visit <http://gemini.gmu.edu/cebcp/JerryLee.html> to register and for more information, including the preliminary program.
